EUFOR LOT Drvar Carabinieri promotes school safety: Basic Life Support Courses for teachers

As part of the ongoing efforts to maintain a Safe and Secure Environment and in line with EUFOR's mandate to support local communities, the Liaison and Observation Team (LOT) of the Italian Carabinieri based in Drvar has recently organized a series of Basic Life Support (BLS) courses for teachers from several schools in its area of responsibility.

This initiative, which complements ongoing Mine Risk Education (MRE) activities, was made possible thanks to the presence of a nurse and a Red Cross first responder deployed within the LOT. The project has so far involved dozens of teachers who received both theoretical and practical training in essential life-saving techniques, including chest compressions and airway obstruction management.

The courses were received with great enthusiasm by school staff, who expressed their gratitude for the opportunity to acquire fundamental skills to effectively respond to emergencies within the school environment. This activity is part of EUFOR's broader commitment to promoting stability and security in Bosnia and Herzegovina, by strengthening civil society capacities and helping to build a safer and more resilient environment.

By investing in education and emergency preparedness, EUFOR reaffirms its commitment to building stronger, safer communities throughout Bosnia and Herzegovina.

LOT Projects: Assisting the Red Cross

Members of EUFOR LOT Višegrad assist Red Cross of Novo Goražde in delivering humanitarian aid to remote families

In a remarkable display of solidarity and service, members of EUFOR LOT Višegrad joined forces with the Red Cross on Novo Goražde Municipality to deliver essential humanitarian aid to socially disadvantaged families living in difficult terrain. Their mission involved transporting basic foods in Novo Goražde and Sastavci to 11 families who face daily struggles due to their remote locations and limited resources.

Most of these families do not own a car and live far from main roads, making access to necessities a significant challenge. The soldiers, equipped with off-road vehicles and determination, ensured that the aid reached those in need, overcoming rugged landscapes and logistical obstacles.

This cooperation between the EUFOR Althea mission and humanitarian organizations highlights the importance of joint efforts in crises.

By combining their strengths, they were able to provide crucial support to vulnerable communities, reinforcing the commitment to humanitarian aid and social responsibility.

Camp Butmir goes green to celebrate St. Patrick's Day

Camp Butmir, Sarajevo — March 17, 2025

In a gesture rich with tradition and symbolism, the Irish Ambassador to Bosnia and Herzegovina H.E Mr. Adrian Farrell marked St. Patrick's Day with a special visit to Camp Butmir, where he honored Irish personnel and presented the traditional bowl of shamrock to the Commander of EUFOR Major General Florin Barbu.

The Irish Senior National Representative Lt. Col Karl Connolly welcomed H.E Mr. Adrian Farrell before presenting the bowl of shamrock to COM EUFOR Major General Barbu, symbolizing the strong bond between Ireland and EUFOR. The shamrock, which is an enduring emblem of Ireland has been used for centuries as a symbol of unity and good fortune.

In a time-honored tradition, the Ambassador and COM EUFOR decorated the Irish contingent serving with EUFOR with sprigs of shamrock. This act pays tribute to their service and dedication, both to their country and to the multinational peacekeeping efforts in Bosnia and Herzegovina.

The Shamrock: a symbol of Irish identity

The shamrock has long been associated with Ireland and St. Patrick, the patron saint of the country. According to legend, St. Patrick used the three-leafed plant to explain the Christian concept of the Holy Trinity — the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit — to the Irish people during his mission in the 5th century.

Over the centuries, the shamrock evolved into a national symbol of Ireland, representing Irish pride, resilience, and unity. It is now worn and displayed globally each March 17th as people of Irish heritage — and those who join in celebration — mark St. Patrick's Day with parades, music, and cultural traditions.

The ceremony at Camp Butmir highlighted not only the significance of the day, but also the important role that Irish personnel play in international peacekeeping efforts.

As the Irish flag fluttered alongside those of other EUFOR contributing nations, the presence of the shamrock served as a powerful reminder of heritage, service, and solidarity. Together stronger.

Valas hosted a reception for all female military members and civilian employees based in Camp Butmir. During the reception, both Commanders delivered speeches welcoming all in attendance and thanking all the women employed and stationed in Camp Butmir for their valuable contribution to the mission.

During his speech, COM EUFOR highlighted the importance of the presence of women in the military and their valuable role in military operations.

COM EUFOR ended his speech by thanking all present for being a key part in ensuring the effectiveness and credibility of our mission 'I extend my sincere gratitude to you for your steadfast commitment, your sacrifices and your hard work.

Congratulations to all of you on this important day and once again, I sincerely thank you for everything you do with us, among us and for us!

Following this, light refreshments were served and the women who work in Camp Butmir had an opportunity to meet and talk to each other.
